

HIS LOT NOT A HAPPY ONE

The Great German Socialist Parties Being Arrayed Against the Kaiser.

Emperor William Determined to Make Unfriendly Newspapers Feel His Power—His Third Glass is What Causes Trouble.

(Copyright, 1892, by the New York Associated Press.)

BERLIN, March 5.—The leaders of the National Liberal and Freisinnige parties are exchanging confidences with a view to concerted action against the Emperor's absolutism. The parties have too widely divergent programmes to permit of fusion, but in the face of danger from a common enemy, who would destroy them both, a temporary coalition is recognized as being inevitable. The question now discussed in the lobbies of the Reichstag is what plan of campaign ought to be adopted against the government. The leaders of the Freisinnige party want to challenge openly the pretensions of the Emperor by raising a debate in regard to the pending press prosecution. The more cautious National Liberal tacticians, however, advocate the adoption of a policy of obstruction in the Reichstag and Landtag in the consideration of the estimates, using whatever constitutional check the deputies have on the government in granting or withholding money. The Emperor has felt the check during the week on the refusal of the deputies to vote an appropriation for the construction of cruisers and corvettes. The proposed coalition would not be sufficient to overthrow the Emperor's pet legislative projects, unless an alliance could be effected with the Free Conservatives. If the advice of Professor Deubrock, one of the most prominent of the Free Conservatives, be followed, this alliance will soon be accomplished, and the government will be obliged to rely on compact Clerico-Conservative majority, ought to succumb and the Emperor be made to adopt a new line of policy. But nobody expects this fortunate result.

The Emperor might dissolve the Reichstag and Landtag, trusting to obtain a majority through the labor vote and the union of the Clericals and Free Conservatives, or he might go further towards absolutism by governing in the strength of his prerogatives, and despite the parliamentary majorities. Everything known regarding Emperor William's mood points to his Majesty's readiness to act as an irresponsible ruler if allowed to do so. The press prosecutions are undertaken in accordance with his express instructions. Those who seek to oppose for and excuse his Majesty assert that the prosecutions were initiated in consequence of the course adopted by the Emperor's prosecutor, and that they were not prompted by the Emperor, and were contrary to his wishes.

It is a well-known fact that the Emperor has been greatly enraged by the press comments on the criticisms of his Brandenburg speech, and he is determined to make the generally recognized rights which have hitherto protected the press from prosecution.

"SLIPPED THE PRESS." The Brandenburg speech of his Majesty continues to be the universal topic of conversation here. The phase which excites the most comment, and which is becoming familiar as a proverb, is the one in which he advises "the discontented grumblers" to be contented.

Mr. Phelps, the representative of the United States to Germany, needed no diplomatic introduction. Mr. Phelps referred to the Emperor's reviews and spoke how he summoned his officers and commented upon their respective commands. He said that, like Emperor William from Potsdam, the Khedive drove in from his country palace to the Cairo schloss and transacted state business with his ministers and then returned.

The Khedive listened to Mr. Phelps' remarks with evident pleasure and pride and replied: "I dined with the Emperor at Potsdam and have been with him at the maneuvers."

Mr. Phelps recalled a meeting with Tewfik Pasha, the present Khedive's father, which took place ten years ago at a dinner given to celebrate Washington's birthday, at which Arabi Pasha was the guest of great prominence. There was also present M. Deloche, the French ambassador, Dr. Field and others. The Khedive spoke with feeling of his father's decease while at Cairo.

Mr. Phelps gave a dinner in honor of Maj. Wiseman, the well-known German officer who is traveling in Egypt for the benefit of his health. Among the guests were United States Judges Keeley and Crosby, Mr. Snowden, United States minister to Greece, and Mrs. Snowden; Baron Malortie, Mrs. and Miss Monroe, of Paris; Miss Furness, of New York; Miss Stoughton, of Washington, and Colonel and Mrs. Challie Long.

Siemens &amp; Halske, the great electricians, threaten that they will make no exhibit at the world's fair at Chicago, owing to want of space.

Mr. H. P. Bellfield, of the United States Department of Labor, after visiting the technical schools of England, France and Germany on a mission for this department, will return to America on the 9th inst. He holds that the technical schools of Boston and Princeton, and a number of other American institutions of a similar nature, compare favorably with anything of the kind he has seen during his tour of the cities of Europe.

Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain) and his wife have left for the South. The Misses Clemens will remain in Berlin to complete their musical education.

American magnetic women are having a hard time. Miss Flossie Bianchi, it was claimed, made such a decided success in her exhibitions in New York, was greeted with hisses upon her debut in this city. The manager of the Concordia Theater, at which she appeared, discharged her, and she is almost penniless. Miss Annie Abbott, the "Georgia wonder," met with a rather better reception at the Winter Garden, but the general public ridiculed the feats she performed by means of magnetism, and credits her with great strength and skill.

THREE WICKED BURGLARS. They Compel Father Ryves to Get Up and Help Them Burglarize His House.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., March 5.—Between the hours of 4 and 5 o'clock this morning the residence of Father John Ryves, of St. Ann's Catholic Church, was entered by three burglars, who forced the priest to assist them in the robbery of his house. The burglars must have been acquainted with the location of the house, for they proceeded at once to the bedroom of Father Ryves without disturbing any other inmates. When Father Ryves awoke he perceived three men standing at the foot of his bed. His first impulse was to grapple with the intruders, but the sight of a revolver pointed at his head caused him to change his mind. The burglars ordered the holy father to cover his head. While he was lying in bed, with his face concealed, the room was thoroughly ransacked. A pocket book containing $4 and a fine gold watch were found and appropriated by the thieves. They ordered Father Ryves to unlock the safe which contained money belonging to St. Ann's Church. The priest hesitated to obey, but a revolver was pressed close to him, and he was told to open the safe, and be quick about it, if he wished his life spared. Slowly Father Ryves approached the safe and manipulated the combination in a manner indicating that it was a difficult job. His nervousness was noticed, and he was ordered to be quicker. "Gentlemen," said he, "this combination has four numbers, and it will require some time to open it."

"Give him time," said one of the ruffians. "He is nervous."

After this remark, the trio laughed as if it were a huge joke. When the safe was finally unlocked, the burglars hastily explored it, and found about $100 in small change. After pocketing the money the burglars ordered Father Ryves to return to bed—telling him they prepared to depart: "Turn your face toward the wall and stay in bed until 7 o'clock or we'll come back and kill you."

Due to the party remained in the room for a few minutes after his companions had gone, to make sure that no outcry was made, and then he made his escape.

AFTER THE CORDAGE TRUST. Government Officials Are Investigating the Combine with the View of Prosecution.

CHICAGO, March 5.—The powerful machinery of the government worked so well in securing indictments against the Whisky Trust officials has now been set in motion against the Cordage Trust which has been boosting prices with a high hand lately.

The Cordage Trust, which represents the Department of Justice, who were out of the warrants for the arrest of President Greenbut and other Whisky Trust officials last week, has been investigating the methods of the Cordage Trust in this city for several days. Last night Mr. Horton left for Minneapolis, where he will confer with the United States district attorney and secure additional evidence to prove that a combination controls the market for cordage. Mr. Horton's investigations while here have been conducted in a very secret manner, but partial facts leaked out this morning. The facts which Mr. Horton has secured will probably be laid before the federal grand jury at Boston, New York or Philadelphia. What evidence Mr. Horton secured while in Chicago is not known.

District Attorney Milchrist admitted with great reluctance this morning that Mr. Horton had been investigating the Cordage Trust, but he said he did not care to make any statement of the case, as a premature publication of the facts would injure the government's case. "I know very little about the facts," said Mr. Milchrist, and the matter ought not to be stated at the present time. The Cordage Trust, I understand, has two concerns in Boston, several in New York State and one or two in Pennsylvania, Ohio and other States. I cannot say how far the investigation has gone, and would prefer not to say anything at present."

General Harrison's presence in the executive chair is an impassable barrier to the schemes of free-coinage fanatics. In the attitude he has assumed he will be sustained by the enlightened opinion of the American people. His anti-silver views may cost him some votes in the electoral college States, but for every vote thus lost he will gain hundreds from voters who look with disapproval on the plans of the free-coinage agitators.

Shot Both Gled and Rival. MILAN, Tenn., March 5.—Near Brownsville, Robert Curry shot and probably fatally wounded Sarah Washington and John Bittler, Thursday night. Curry and Bittler were rivals for the young woman's hand. Bittler called and Curry came soon after. The young woman refused to entertain him, whereupon he shot her in the breast and arm, and then shot Bittler in the abdomen. Curry was arrested.

Cruel Hoax About Jay Gould. NEW ORLEANS, March 5.—Inquires by the Associated Press, instituted on account of the circulation of a rumor in Wall street, New York, that Jay Gould had dropped dead, elicited the information from the train-dispatcher at Marshall, Tex., that Mr. Gould was all right when he left there at 10 o'clock this morning.

Break in the Salt Market. ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 5.—The salt market has gone to pieces as a result of the collapse of the western New York combine. The price of it is falling and there seems to be no bottom to it. Duty has been lowered 40 per cent, and common salt is 40 per cent. lower than on Jan. 1.

A VOICE FROM THE PAST

Mrs. Patsy Sears, a Howard County Woman, Smokes Her Pipe at 108.

Lying Like a Mummy, Surrounded by Gray-Haired Grandchildren, She Quotes Poetry About Gen. George Washington.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

KOKOMO, Ind., March 5.—Patsy Sears, a remarkable character, and, it is believed, the oldest resident of the Hoosier State, is nearing death's door.

Her maiden name was Patsy Humphrey, and she was born in Culpeper county, Virginia, in the year 1784. She declares she was born two years earlier than this date, but the children, by comparison of figures, and events place her birth in the year named. She is of a family noted for longevity, her father having rounded out a century and her mother passing away at the golden age of 108. Learning that the venerable woman was not much longer for this world a Journal representative visited the home in the northeast part of this county and obtained a full history of her remarkable career. For many years she has made her home with her only daughter, Mrs. John Wolf, two and a half miles southwest of Plevna, their abode being a rude log cabin of three rooms.

In one of the cramped apartments the reporter found the emaciated woman stretched on an old-fashioned cord bedstead, surrounded by children and grandchildren, some with silver locks, old and feeble enough to be in their graves. The mother, looking more like a mummy than a living being, lay apparently lifeless, her face gaunt and weird, resembling a piece of parchment, wrinkled and faded with age, her hands more like animal claws than human members. Learning that a stranger was in the room she aroused from her apparent lifelessness, inquiring in a feeble, squeaky voice, "Who is that man, and what does he want?"

When enlightened, her countenance brightened and she conversed as freely as possible with her weakness and short breath. Her mind was perfectly clear, and after time had a little speaking and she was quite animated in spirit as she narrated events of the eighteenth century. On the bed she kept a wooden box filled with sawdust and smoked her pipe regularly, as she has done for the past ninety years.

In the year 1800, at the age of sixteen, she was married to Fielden Humphrey, who, though of the same name as herself, was not related to her by blood. In 1828, they had a number of children, four of whom survive. The oldest living son, Charles Humphrey, was born in 1818, was a veteran of the Mexican war and resides in Pulaski county. John Humphrey, born in 1825, went through the late war and lives in Jefferson county. Mrs. Sears, wife of John Wolf, with whom Patsy Sears makes her home, and the youngest daughter, Mary Ann Sears, old. Another son, Benjamin, lives in Perry county, Ohio. In 1881 Mrs. Humphrey, with her husband and small children, moved from Virginia to Indiana, crossing the Blue Ridge mountains on horseback and in wagons, enduring hardships hardly severe hardly.

Madam Sears came here from Ohio in the pioneer days of the country, and has resided here continually ever since. For many years she has shared the humble home of her daughter, in the log hut heretofore mentioned. This primitive domicile also has a history. It is one of the first log cabins ever built in the country, and for a number of years was the headquarters of "old Chief Tyler," a half-breed, who kept a stock of liquor under the house to barter to the Indians. The cavern under the house is intact, as it was fifty years ago, when Tyler dealt out "jag oil" to the redskins of the forest.

The more than centenarian never went to school a day in her life, and did not learn to read until she was over eighty years of age. Since that time she has read the Bible through seven times, and Josephus's history of the Jews once. She has been a member of the Methodist Church for a century, and is a devoted and zealous Christian. Her faculties are retained to a wonderful degree. She is slightly deaf, but her eyeight is as good as it was fifty years ago. She has her natural teeth in an almost perfect state of preservation. She is a lover of tobacco and has smoked her pipe for more than ninety years, as before stated, and has always kept liquor in the house. She has been sick a day in her life, and never permitted a doctor inside of her door.

She talks entertainingly of old times, and frequently sees George Washington and other patriots of the revolution in the Old Dominion. To the reporter she recited a stanza of poetry, in speaking of Washington, as follows:

We are our great commander
In many a bloody fray,
And with his valiant army
Fought and won the day.

All the children, except one son, are now at her bedside to witness her departure, which cannot be long removed. No particular disease is preying on her vitality, but a gradual breaking down of her whole system. Each day finds her weaker, and the supreme moment is near at hand.

The Probability. General Morgan is quoted as saying that General Harrison will probably be renominated by acclamation. That is certainly the present indication. Senator Cullom, as reported, holds that the nomination lies between himself and the President. Doubtless somewhere between Indianapolis and Springfield, but rather close to Indianapolis.

Will Be Pardoned. Washington Post.

Ex-Speaker Reed will be pardoned if in the future his speeches contain allusions to "me and the Supreme Court."

DR. GREENE'S NERVURA

(Guaranteed Purely Vegetable and Harmless.)

THE GREAT SPRING TONIC AND RESTORATIVE.

All who need a strengthening medicine—all who are nervous, weak, tired, languid, exhausted in nerve power and physical strength; who are sleepless, wake tired and unrefreshed, without strength and energy for the day's work; who have poor blood, headache, backache, dyspepsia, indigestion, gas, bloating, faint feelings, loss of appetite, constipation, kidney or liver complaint, should read the following:

I was broken down with nervous and physical prostration before using Dr. Greene's Nervura, and life was a burden. It will tell you how I could sleep soundly, and the trembling and bearing down are cured. I am no longer constipated, while before I had to use injections every time. I can walk to the neighbors, which I have not done before for years, and do my work. I thank God for the great good Dr. Greene's Nervura has done me. Mrs. S. M. H. East Wilton, Me.
